It's impossible to teach size and instinct, anyone can improve on shooting. Learning to shoot is an exercise in discipline. Our philosophy is to teach the proper technique. Too often players never learn the right way and they keep practicing the wrong way and wonder why they are not successful. We are going to break the shooting process down to the simplest elements and assist players of every level to refine their positive habits and correct any problem areas.

This is a shooting camp, hoping to sow the seeds of success, which are the proper technique and right mental approach to everything from "free throws to three pointers to bank shots to post play."

We recognize that planting the seed is only the beginning. Commitment and the desire to improve are essential if players want to reach their full potential. Remember great shooters are made through constant repetitions of doing it the right way.
